JAMIE'S ON THE STORMY SEA.

Ere the twilight but was ditting,
In the sunset, at her knitting,
Sang a lonely maiden, sitting
Underneath her threshold tree;
And as daylight died before us,
And the vesper stars shone o'er us,
Fifteen roses her tender chorus—
"Jamie's on the stormy sea!"

Warmly shone the sunset glowing,
Sweetly breathed the young flowers
blowing,
Earth with beauty overflowing,
Seemed the home of love to be,
As those angel tones ascending,
With the scene and season blending,
Ever had the same low ending—
"Jamie's on the stormy sea!"

Curfew bells remotely ringing,
Mingled with that sweet voice singing,
And the last red ray seemed clinging
Lingeringly to tower and tree.
Nearer as I came, and nearer,
Finer rose the notes, and clearer;
Oh, 'twas heaven itself to hear her—
"Jamie's on the stormy sea!"

"Blow, ye west winds! blandly hover
Over the bark that bears my lover;
Gently blow and hear him over
To his own dear home and me;
For, when night winds bend the willow,
Sleep forsakes my lonely pillow,
Thinking of the foaming billow—
"Jamie's on the stormy sea!"

How could I but list, but linger,
To the song and near the singer,
Sweetly wooing heaven to bring her
Jamie from the stormy sea?
And while yet her lips did name me,
Forth I sprang: my heart o'ercame me;
Grieve no more, sweet, I am Jamie,
Home returned to love and thee!"

SLEEPING TOGETHER.—The "Laws of Life" says: "More quarrels arise between brothers, between sisters, between hired girls, between clerks in stores, between apprentices, between hired men, between husbands and wives, owing to electrical changes through which their nervous systems go by lodging together night after night under the same bed-clothes, than by any other disturbance cause. There is nothing that will so derange the nervous system of a person who is elementive in nervous force as to lie all night in bed with another who is absorbent in nervous force. The absorbent will go to sleep and rest all night, while the elementive will be tumbling and tossing, restless and nervous, and wake up in the morning fretful, peevish, fault-finding and discouraged. No two persons, no matter who they are, should habitually sleep together. One will thrive and the other lose. This is the law, and in married life it is almost universally defied.

A KISS.—What's in a kiss? Really, when people come to reflect upon the matter calmly, what can they see in a kiss? The lips part slightly and touch the cheek softly, and then they just part—and the joy is complete! There is a kiss in the abstract. View it in the abstract—take it as it stands—look at it philosophically! What is there in it, after all? Millions upon millions of souls have been plunged into misery and despair by this kissing; and yet, when you look at the character of the thing, it is simply a pointing of the lips. In every grade of society there is kissing. Go where you will, to what country you will, and you are perfectly sure to find kissing.

The Dodge county (Minnesota) Republican notes this instance of the advance of civilization in that region: "An Indian, near Black River Falls, got intoxicated the other day, and by way of amusement actually scalped his wife. A few of his aboriginal neighbors heard the hubbub, and, to administer a slight chastisement to Indian number one for his facetiousness, skinned him alive. He lived fifteen minutes after the latter performance.

Cincinnati is happy in the possession of a man, or brute, who recently performed the feat of eating, at one meal, four pounds of raw pork sausages and two pounds of raw beefsteak. This tremendous feeder, after devouring the aforesaid, offered to bet $25 that he could, on the instant, conclude this extraordinary performance by eating a beef's heart raw. There were no takers.

Dewey, the man who was hung up for a while last fall by the Vigilance Committee at Charlton, Iowa, has been prosecuting his hangers, and has finally succeeded in obtaining a judgment for $3,000 damage against three of them.

WHITE-WASH T. WILL NOT RUB OUT.—Mix up half a pailful of lime and water, half a pint of flour and make a starch of it; pour it into the white-wash while hot. Stir it well and make it ready for use.

THE LEGISLATURE OF NEVADA.

Since the formation of the Federal Union no political party has attained power in a State under circumstances so adverse to a successful Administration as those under which the Democratic party have assumed control of the government of Nevada. The robberies of the Radical "Ring" that has ruled Nevada since the premature birth of the State have only been limited by the amount of plunder within reach of a rascally pluck and enterprise and shamelessness unparalleled in the history of political corruption. As an evidence of the utter insensibility of the Radical "Ring" of Nevada to the obligation to observe a common decency in its conduct, one of its journals actually boasted that the Democratic party would commence to rule with an empty treasury—checked at the idea that the State had been bankrupt by the party of which it was an organ. The Democratic Administration has not only to provide for the present State Government, but it has to reform and correct the abuses of six years of Republican rule. The Radicals not only stole everything which could be wrung from the people by taxation, but they actually borrowed money on State account to steal. As a fitting climax to money and franchise robberies, they have captured, under cover of the law, the State Prison; and if they had supposed that their opportunity for robbery was to be tethered by the accession to power of the Democratic party, they would probably have made a clean sweep of the real estate of the State and of the counties under their control. The Democratic Administration will be necessarily compelled to provide means to supply the deficiencies caused by Radical extravagance and corruption, and whatever taxation may be required to do this, will be charged as a fault against the party by the very men who are the cause of it. We therefore recommend that in whatever legislation that may be adopted involving taxation to meet unavoidable obligations incurred through Radical malfeasance, the cause for it should be distinctly specified. The Radicals should be held to a strict responsibility for the onerous legislation which their conduct has necessitated. If they are made to bear the just odium of their six years of misrule, and the Democratic Administration is honest and economical, the vote of Nevada for the Democratic candidate for the Presidency in 1872 may be counted upon as assured.—[S. F. Examiner.

The New Jersey State Lunatic Asylum is so overcrowded that it has been found necessary to return many lunatics to the counties from which they came, and it is proposed as a means of relief to secure the passage of an Act authorizing each county in the State to erect, at the public expense, a suitable building for the careful and proper treatment of the insane within its limits.

On the "best of authority" the Providence (R. I.) Journal says that a comet of large size will suddenly make its appearance on the night of June 12, 1871, and "during the next four weeks the fate of the world will be decided."

This remark was made by a young lady of St. Louis: "It is wisely ordained that the same wind that sweeps our dresses aside also fills the eyes of naughty young men with dust."
